Did you know...?

Knossos was a huge palace similar to a citadel, and over 10,000 people lived there. According to Greek Mythology, the city was once ruled by King Minos, who built a large labyrinth under the palace where a monster called the Minotaur lived.

The big vases, called pithoi, contained wine, food, and olive oil. And men really jumped over a bull! Bull-leaping was a popular sport practiced by young, strong, and brave men!
